As for Ms. Arthur, I happen to be a fan or else I wouldn't have even joined this group in the first place. I also happen to be honest. If it pisses you off, oh well. Guess you're just another uppity know-it-all member. And watch your language. Sheeesh.

Hi all,

I don't believe in spreading bad karma and I believe that's what I've done with my last couple of postings. Yes, I may have spoken out of hand in assuming the Bea did not go to the Tony's because she was drinking. You're right,(Jeffrey) I do not know Ms. Arthur and shouldn't necessarily believe everything I hear or read. I do still have a gut feeling that I wouldn't like everyone member of this group (see my previous posting), but at least we all have one thing in common: we like/love Bea Arthur. Despite my previous comments, here are some reasons why I love her:

She is funny.

She donates her time and talents to various AIDS and Animal Rights charities.

She is seems very intelligent.

She is the star of one of my favorite TV shows of all time, "The Golden Girls".

She has won Emmy's and a Tony and crossed over from the stage to TV to the Silver Screen.

She did a 1-woman show at the age of 78-79.

And many other reasons I cannot think of at this late hour.

Thanks for the group Kevin.

Hello everyone!

Well, I'm glad to see that (hopefully) we have settle our differences here! I strongly believe in that everyone is entitled to their own opinion, so rant and rave on! Don't be shy! But lets remember to at least respect each others view points during the process. The great part is that through discussions and arguments we all learn more tidbits.

We have some great people here... Some bawdy, some reserved and somewhat shy. Together we are Bea Arthur (ok, that was sad, but I had to say it like that). Nevertheless, we have a great group of people here.

Being that Bea's career is currently on a slow down, lets try to keep the conversations here Bea specific. There are a ton of Golden Girls specific groups out there, so if you want to post Golden Girls trivia, best post it on a Golden Girls specific groups. I really don't like to spread ourselves out to much (can you tell I belong to a lot of groups!). There is really only one good Golden Girls group out there and that is :: <http://groups.yahoo.com/group/thegoldengirlscopyberdiner>

Another thing I would like to mention is spamming. Don't do it here. I will delete it immediately. If it gets out of hand I will change the groups preference to where every message has to be cleared through me first. I don't want to do that, so people don't think I'm moderating the group towards any one direction (though very tempting at times!)

Thank you all for your participation! Over the past year we have all gained tremendous knowledge from each other here. Thanks for making this the #1 Bea Arthur Yahoo group and helping with the currently top Bea Arthur web site (BeatriceArthur.com).

As for me, this is summertime, and I won't be doing much to the BeatriceArthur.com web site. However, I have a lot of ideas that I plan to start implementing when I get the time later this year. Even if Bea disappears for a while, I will try to keep changing and adding content to the web site. It's a great pass time for me and true enjoy doing it at my expense. Glad you all appreciate it... Makes it all more worth it!

Take care all and keep on keeping on!

Kev!

I agree with you totally. Bea was too sick to attend the tony's and if I was her age i wouldnt go either if i wasn't feeling well. I am glad she does not read these messages. I dont think it's right for fans to get mad at her. even if they are dissappointed.

At this point, I just have to laugh. Kevin, you have done a wonderful job creating this group and giving us a place to express our opinions. There was no rule that said, if you don't like Bea Arthur, don't post here.

Personally, I happen to love the woman as an entertainer. Do I always agree with the choices she made? No. Does it matter? No. I know there are a lot of people in this group that feel the way I do. So, I say what I want to say. I know there are a lot of people who disagree with what I might say. That is fine too. That is the beauty of this group!

One thing I have learned growing up is that everyone has an opinion. We learn from other people's opinions. Just because we disagree, does not make us any more right or wrong. It just means we see things differently. Again, that is the beauty of this group...

I have been, for the most part, pleased with this group. What I have not been pleased with is people attacking other people. Is that really the mature thing to do? Is that a nice thing to do? Does it really make us better people to have to read some one's attack on another member? I clearly can answer NO to all of those questions. So why do it?

Just so this message pertains to Bea, I am anxiously awaiting to here some more news on her going to Australia. If I had the time and the money to fly there, I would go in a heartbeat.

Now, I never push Bea off on other people. For instance, my parent's think I am foolish in liking her. But I think some of the things they find entertaining foolish as well, so we don't try to convert the other. At my desk at work, I have a nice picture of Bea on my wall. I also listen to her cd quite frequently. The other day our computer specialist saw it while working on my pc. He asked to borrow it. (I was a little hesitant to give Bea up, but I let him take her.) He came back a week later, thank goodness, and told me he loved her CD. I had to pass that along with y'all.

Warm wishes to all,
Galen

Hi Jason,

My advice would be to constantly search eBay.com for Golden Palace and The Golden Girls uncut. I have seen those before on eBay. Just be very cautious about the seller and always ask questions before you bid!

redbaron7676

Hi everybody,

Sunday night Trio showed "TV's Censored Moments," featuring some moments that were either cut from TV, or almost cut from TV. Bea was on there twice - both times talking about controversial scenes from Maude. One dealt with the "son of a bitch" line from the episode of Maude when Walter cheated on her. The other one dealt with the abortion episode and all the flack they got for doing that storyline. Bea looked great. All the interviews were in black and white, and they showed Bea and Norman Lear talking about the show. It was the same comments we had heard before in CBS's show about TV in the 70's, and from Bea's story on her CD about how they made her say "son of a witch." But this time, they let her say "bitch," so I guess those were two separate episodes. Just thought you all would like hearing about that...if it's on again, try to catch it. It was really interesting.

Chris, that's very interesting you mentioning the "son a bitch" line...because I remember watching that Maude episode right after I saw her one-woman show...and on my tape, she gives Walter a hug while saying "you son of a bitch". I rewound it several times to hear exactly what she said - and she's definitely saying "bitch".

I guess TV Land didn't have a problem showing the "director's cut" version :)

Thanks Ironicwit for some new articles. I found the article from iclassics.com very refreshing. It's nice to read something about Bea that isn't directly related to her Broadway show, but moreso directed at the content! Ok, that doesn't make sense but I know what I'm trying to say :)

I came across some of the "Maude" episodes I had taped off of TVLand and watched a couple the last couple of days. How hysterical was Bea as Maude and Rue as Vivian! Oh I laughed my behind off. Classic is Bea's timing and double takes!!!!!! With Bea it's more like triple takes. On one episode of Golden Girls she actually did a quadruple take. I swear. It's the episode where Rose inherits her uncle's pet pig and Blance makes a comment on how she's prettier than the other girls and our fabulous Bea turns around and shoots her "look" to her 4 times. Long live Bea Arthur!!!!!!!

It would be awesome to do a chat sometime soon! I have to apologize, I've just kind of been lurking in here and only reading the posts lately, since I haven't really found any new news about Bea. But I've been keeping my eyes peeled! I was flipping through my cousin's issue of "Cosmo" the other day when I was out of town for the 4th and found a less-than-flattering mention of Bea...and the circumstances under which she was mentioned were not at all appropriate. Well, it doesn't matter...we know Bea is great! :) Also, thanks for the "happy", Kevin, it was really cute!
I hope everyone is doing well and enjoying their summer. Take care.

Hey! Did you all have a chat last night? How did it go? Sorry I couldn't be there! But I was thinking of you :)

This summer the Halifax Feast Dinner Theatre is presenting "All in the MacFamily," a spoof of Archie Bunker and company. Among the characters in the play is Maude Finicky. You remember her. She's the "tart-tongued, martini-swilling feminist" who says, "Every woman should have four animals, a mink on her back, a tiger in her bed, a Jaguar in her garage and a jackass to pay for it all."
