Simply because Bea's birth name is Bernice Frankel. She changed her name to Beatrice when she got into showbiz, though it's not clear as to when. Maybe Kevin knows. And she got her last name Arthur from her first marriage. :) Hope this helps.

I've been a Bea Arthur fan since I was a little girl since I saw her in "The Golden Girls" alongside Rue McClanahan, Estelle Getty and Betty White. Hey there everybody! I have been trying to find photos of Bea as "Vera Charles" from the Mame movie, but I cannot find any. I find plenty of Lucille Ball photos from the movie, but none of Bea!!

Anyone know where I can find some? I would really like some good close ups of her in that role.

I heard an interview once and she said she recorded an album (you know the thin round black things before 8Tracks). but I do not have any information on it. there is a song on there called 'let me love you' that I would love to hear. can anyone help me?

I, too, would love to get hold of this record, if there is such a thing. I only know about the Shoestring Revues, as far as early recordings.

Why don't you just order from the States? You may have to pay some custom free but I do order in the States a lot and never had problems. You won't even have to register new on Amazon if you already have an account in the UK, just login and order.

I bought the first Year as soon as it was available and my kind husband has been trying to find the rest of the series (or at least Year Two) as a Christmas present for me. However, he only found the full series on <http://www.todvdornottodvd.com/movie/comedy/Maude.html> and was hesitant to buy since we've not seen anything on Amazon or mentioned on Limelight.

Has anyone else bought this set and is it ok or obviously from old tapes, etc?

Has anyone located Year Two from a better known resource?

Help, I miss my favorite episodes, like Walter's Problem and the four-parter when Maude runs for office.

If I were you, I wouldn't buy the full series that you see on the website you provided below. Sony will soon release the other seasons, and then you'll have the best quality there is. Season 2 isn't yet released, though. I'd advise you to wait for the real release.

On the other hand, it could take Sony several years to release the other five seasons, so it might be worth buying the unofficial set just to have, until the Sony ones come out. I don't want to wait five years to see the rest of the show!

I think "Walter's Problem" is one of the best eps, too! My favorites are the more serious ones. I love "The Analyst" (season 4) and "The Convention." ...

These may not be top-notch quality, but it will do until the official DVDs are available. I plan to get mine in Feb. (my birthday.)

A while back, I did get a set from www.sell.com

It's missing several episodes, though, but I didn't spend as much as the other sites are charging, so that too is an option. If I'd known I could find the entire series elsewhere, I'd have waited! :)

Maude stars a middle-aged woman who talks about politics and other relevant issues.

No sex jokes, no T & A so of course SONY will drag its heels.

The Odd Couple Seasons 3 and 4 already have release dates in 2008. Bea and Adrienne taped comments for Season 2 earlier this year. As to its release. . . pound on SONY's door.

Well, there are a few sex jokes; you certainly get the impression it matters! :) I guess Maude's brand of jokes tame, compared to current-day stuff, though. I don't know, I rarely watch TV.

That's great that Season 2 may include interview segments! I wish Bill Macy was part of that.

... but on a tangent, I see from IMDB's list that he is still working. That makes me very happy; I assume it means he's doing well.

Maude stars a middle-aged woman who talks about politics and other relevant issues.

No sex jokes, no T & A so of course SONY will drag its heels.

The Odd Couple Seasons 3 and 4 already have release dates in 2008. Bea and Adrienne taped comments for Season 2 earlier this year. As to its release. . . pound on SONY's door.

Any thoughts? Comments? The list is quiet.

I just joined the group (yay!) and am happy to be a part of something involving my favorite actress, Bea Arthur. It is so discouraging for me to not be able to find much information online about her current projects, or anything that she is involved with recently really. I hope with all my heart she will do a few more shows. The only show I ever got tickets to (An evening with Bea Arthur) was cancelled due to a sudden illness Bea came down with and I was never able to get a second chance. It's still upsetting to me years later. I find loads of info up to January-ish of 2006 but then it seems to suddenly halt.

If anyone knows anything about Bea's current schedule, or anything that she is participating in, please share. Thank you!

Unfortunately, Bea has slowed down/stopped doing much of anything lately. Reasons are unknown specifically, but it is possible that she has hit the point where she can't do much more. I know we remain optimistic that she will do something again and surprise us all, so hang in there and be optimistic too! I'm always going to keep the site going no matter what... and will certainly update it whenever there is anything new to report! So sit tight and lets see what 2008 brings us!!

Happy belated New Years everyone!

Kev!
