Check your facts... The show started in 1985, and ran through 1992.Â Bea was on The Golden Girls through the entire series.

Golden Palace aired on CBS from 1992-1993.Â Bea appeared in one two-part episode.

I thought you were including The Golden Palace. It was on for 7 years. I thought she had a rule never to do a show more than 6 years.

Hard Hearted Hannah (The Vamp of Savannah)
 From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
 Jump to: navigation, search

Sheet music cover of Hard Hearted Hannah (The Vamp of Savannah)"Hard Hearted Hannah (The Vamp of Savannah)" is a popular song from Tin Pan Alley.

The music was written by Milton Ager, the lyrics by Jack Yellen, Bob Bigelow, and Charles Bates. The song was published in 1924 by Ager, Yellen & Bornstein, Inc..[1]

Hard Hearted Hannah tells in humorous fashion the story of a "vamp" or femme fatale from Savannah, Georgia "the meanest gal in town." Hannah is "a gal who loves to see men suffer."

It had early recordings by vocalists Lucille Hegamin [2] and Dolly Kay,[3] Herb Wiedoeft's band (1924)[4] and by Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra.[5] A quarter century later Peggy Lee revived "Hannah" very successfully for Capitol Records, and the Ray Charles Singers made a hit version for Decca.[6]

The song has been recorded numerous times by such performers as Patti Austin, Belle Baker, The Buffalo Bills (quartet) The Bronson Singers, Jim Croce, Bobby Darin, Cliff "Ukelele Ike" Edwards, Ella Fitzgerald, Stacey Kent, Joyce Moody, Turk Murphy, Nancy Sinatra, Kay Starr, The Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, Toni Tennille, Mary Testa, Sophie Tucker, and Margaret Whiting.[7]

Memorable television performances of the song include those by Carol Burnett, Peggy Lee, Ella Fitzgerald, and Beatrice Arthur on Maude (TV series) and The Golden Girls. The song was performed by vampire Bill Compton (played by Stephen Moyer) in the sixth episode of the second season of the HBO show True Blood, also called Hard-Hearted Hannah; Dolly Kay's recording of the song plays over the final credits.[8]

 Farrah Fawcett and Bea Arthur not Remembered at Oscars
 Whilst a lot of lesser recognised stars who died in 2009 have been remembered,
 Bea Arthur and Farrah Fawcett didn't make the final slice

The In Memoriam section from the Oscars is admittedly awkward and in all probability serves as a lot more of an intermission for your participants than an actual part from the indicate. That reported, the Academy appears to go to excellent lengths to incorporate all of us of notice who passed within the prior yr who had any appreciable contribution towards the movie community. And provided their celeb fotografia slubna slask and normal popularity amid the masses, it will have appeared that Farrah and Bea would have built the Memoriam montage. But they failed to.

For Farrah Fawcett's loved ones, this incident should be especially troubling in light from the fact that most of the planned tributes to Farrah have been preempted by coverage and remembrance of Michael Jackson following the King of Pop died all of a sudden exactly the same day Farrah died.

Outdoors of that blunder by the Academy, the Oscars seem to have absent down pozycjonowanie smoothly for many. Alec Baldwin and Steve Martin have been stable as hosts and managed to move points along not having a struggle. They also managed to prevent the over-played singing intro, which was left to Neil Patrick Harris. Quite a few hope which will be the close from the singing introduction.

Harm Locker dominated the Awards, profitable in six from the 9 categories during which it absolutely was nominated. Sandra Bullock brought Kontenery socjalne home the very best Actress award for your Blind Side, although Jeff Bridges won for Insane Heart. Avatar won many awards, but none from the a lot more prestigious ones, possessing had the unfortunate circumstance of facing Harm Locker in all of all those categories. Harm Locker is broadly regarded as by critics to be the very best movie of 2009 as well as accolades ongoing very last night.

If it's worth anything, Maude is now showing on the TV Network "Antenna TV"
<http://www.antennatv.tv/>. This is as of February 2012.

Unfortunately not in my city, yet. I have a friend who gets it, though. She doesn't watch regularly, but does enjoy Maude if she happens to catch the show. That's something, I guess. :)

I believe all of the episodes are now up on Youtube, just so you know. :)

The set I bought off of Ioffer had three missing, and even those have been uploaded, which is really exciting!

Hi all!

Whoever is left here that is :)

For those that are still hanging in there, I wanted to let you know that have been updating the Bea site recently. Stop by and let me know what you think. I can tell you right now, that I have to still work on the navigation to work better on mobile devices, but other then that, I have transferred over the content from the past 12 years! Good to reread some of your comments during the glory days of Bea's one women show.

As always, you can visit here.

<http://www.beatricearthur.com>

If interested, the facebook page is available below.

<https://www.facebook.com/pages/Bea-Arthur-in-the-Lime-Lite-Fan-Page/105474839499\310>

Most likely, future discussion will take place over on the facebook page, as the times have changed, so think about taking a part in that.

Hope you all have been well!

I'm still here, and not a Facebook user, so I appreciate the group still existing.

Yes, official releases of seasons 2-6 would be wonderful.

I'm downloading the complete series via a torrent, and it's taken two weeks! Should finish today, I think. I've seen them all, but can't wait to see them again, and have them easily accessible on the computer.

But I wouldn't hesitate to buy official DVDs, if they were available. I bought S1, let a friend borrow it, and never saw it again. :)
