In an article published in the Raleigh "News & Observer" (July 30, 2001), Bea is quoted as saying that she "had been married a couple of times." Unfortunately, she didn't mention any names. That's why I'm not sure if she really was married to Bob Aurthur. According to IMDb, she *was* married to him; however, IMDb is not always accurate (the bad thing about that is, incorrect info from IMDb can find its way into other publications). An article in the "New York Observer" also mentions that Bea was married to Bob Aurthur. I don't consider either source sufficient confirmation of the marriage.Interestingly, the "New York Times" obituary of Mr. Aurthur never even mentioned Bea. If they were, indeed, married at one time, it seems a strange omission. Regardless of who her other spouse was, it must have been a short-lived union.

The League of American Theatres and Producers and New York State's Council on Economic Development are teaming up to offer discounts to a number of Broadway and Off-Broadway shows. According to today's "New York Daily News," Bea's show is among those participating in the program.On Sunday, January 6th, a special insert designed to resemble a "Playbill" will be included in the "Daily News" as well as various newspapers between Boston and Washington, D.C. The 32-page booklet will feature discount coupons for shows, hotels, transportation, and other businesses. No word yet on the amount of the discount for Bea's show.

- This is a very unkind review -- the harshest I've read. - Why are all the reviews about Bea's show so un-positive lately? Now more than ever, I'm really anxious to hear how the show will be in NYC. According to broadwaysbiggesthits.com, Bea's show isn't going to stand a chance and the audiences in NYC "will demand more than she delivers." We'll just have to see....Jessica

- These are the first bad reviews I have read as well. I think it might be because the audience in Phoenix may not have agreed with her political views or her colorful material (which I find excellent). This is true especially if the audience was mature. As far as the material not allowing audiences to see who she really is - every time I went to a show I always wanted more - not because she did not share details about her private life but rather because I thought the show was too short.I am not sure if I even want to know anything about her private life other than what she shares in interviews. It is really none of our business. I would not take these bad reviews to heart - she is still one of the best.Maribeth

These are not the first unfavorable reviews. The tour started with some unpleasant comments from several reviewers.Here's one example -- a review in "Variety," which indicated that the show "occasionally feels like Norma Desmond's farewell tour."http://www.findarticles.com/cf\_0/m1312/12\_382/74694148/p1/article.jhtml?term=%22bea+arthur%22Thankfully, the reviews we've read since then have been favorable for the most part. For a while this summer, it seemed that the reviews kept getting better and better all the time. That's why it's so disconcerting to run into these Phoenix reviews, which are not totally without merit (though I do find fault with the review for the "Arizona Republic").

I think this is a great opportunity to meet Ms. Arthur, but unfortunately I am going to see the matinee on the 30th - one day too soon! Timing is everything. I am so upset because I would like to meet her officially. I am hoping that she allows folks to meet her on Broadway similar to what she did on the tour. Of course she won't sign autographs outside in the winter but I am hoping that she allows folks to meet her backstage. This party is being done for charity so am not taking it to mean that this is the only way she is going to meet folks during her NYC stay.Maribeth

I went to the Phoenix show on 1/3 and loved it!!!! You're right, the audience at the Orpheum tends to be older audiences. Bea has always been opinionated and quite pointed about her views, and those attending her show know that before they buy their tickets...so as the old saying goes "Buyer beware" :-). But as I said, I loved the show, and it left me wanting more when it was finished. She has such an array of stories, and the opening was phenomenal (the leg of lamb recipe)...I hope she comes back again!

- Hi folks!This is a huge fan from Germany. Of course, no Bea Arthur (or any other "real" star...) ever comes to the small town I live in :-(. And as I am poor ;-), I was not able to see her show in the USA, as well. So I hope that the whole show will be released on CD soon. Does anyone of you know anything about that beeing planned? - Bea made one appearance on All in the Family called Cousin Maude. Then on the second appearance, they introduced Maude as a spin off. Basically Archie and Edith went over to Maude's house, where they introduced the characters of Maude. Both are great episodes. The Cousin Maude episode is a true classic. Maude and Archie compliment themselves wonderfully!Keep an eye out, they do play both episodes from time to time.Kev!BeatriceArthur.com

Lauren,Maude was a spin off of All in the Family. Maude came to help out when everyone was sick, people like her and thus came the series Maude. The only other time that Maude and the All in the Family characters were together was the pilot episode of Maude when Archie and Edith went to visit Maude for Carol's wedding that did not take place. Hope this helps.Matt

Just wanted to remind everyone about the Golden Girls marathon on Lifetime(what else) hosted by Bea herself on Jan. 21. I believe it will be from 8am to 12:30 pm that day. The episodes will be Bea's favorites. I'm very excited about this. Especially now because I saw the commercial today and it showed Bea (in what looked like her dressing room.) Anyone else catch the commercial? I'm sure it'll show it again before next Monday though.
