Here's a cute piece about two '70s icons: Bea and Paul Lynde. Hm-m-mm, I've got to watch "Sex and the City" tonight to see if the author's right about Samantha (if she is, maybe that's why Samantha is my favorite of the four lead characters)!

- You are doing a great job Ironicwit :) Though I get news alerts and all that stuff, I still manage to miss a bunch of stuff that you point out... so you are a vital part of it all! Thank you!
- I too have these thoughts of, wouldn't it be cool if Bea invited me to dinner, too. However, I make it a point never to get my hopes up too much on anything so I didn't want to say that out loud previous to the show! I had a better then expected time in her dressing room, and was really impressed when she gave Paula her flowers... so I am certainly not complaining about anything! This time it was like talking to a friend with casual conversation, instead of just tongue tied and stupid the first time I met her. So, I was really happy with that feeling as I left.
- I feel complete, no need to keep pushing for more. Everything that has happened over the past five years is a lot more then I would ever have dreamed of. I respect her time and privacy, so I will continue to enjoy sitting back and seeing what else she does in the next upcoming years and continue to live vicariously through other fans!
- This Oregon show sounds really interesting... I hope we hear from some people that go to it later this year!
- Thanks again for the posts Ironicwit! I know that all the lurkers here appreciate it too :)

Kev!

Hi everyone. I am planning a road trip from Alabama to Atlantic City to see Bea at the Tropicana. When I read about that appearance, I thought, "Well, that settles the summer trip." I mean, I can't think of anything better! My question is, how does one go about getting to say a quick hello to Bea? Are we allowed to give her flowers, or are people just putting them on the stage? I've seen her before in Savannah, but didn't think about ways to meet her. I was hoping she would offer special tickets to a post-show party like she did in Columbus, GA (which I missed because I didn't check the news update until the day after!). Any info or tips?

Thanks,
Chris

As seems to be a trend, the Complete Second Season of The Golden Girls on DVD landed in the UK earlier than anticipated - four days before the *official* release date of May 17th. I decided not to purchase the Second Season DVD until it's released here in the UK on August 1st - it's quite tough but at least I have my tapes to keep me going until then.

A friend who received the DVD yesterday has provided me with some shots of the boxset. It always looks much prettier in real-life than the flat images we've seen floating around the net for months. Take a look > <http://www.the-goldengirls.com/DVD/dvd.html> :)

The cover art for Season 3 [which will be released later this year, Disney say] has also been released and you can see that here > <http://www.thegoldengirlstv.co.uk/forums/index.php?act=home>

Pink really suits the boxset :)

A little more news re Bea...

LifetimeTV have set up a petition on their website in support of airing The Golden Palace. Here in the UK we've seen GP a good 4 or 5 times in the past couple of years so I'm thrilled for American fans to possibly get the chance to see the spin-off series. It's looking good anyway. Dorothy featured in two of the episodes which were absolutely hilarious. You can show your support by going to <http://www.lifetimetv.com/shows/golden/petition/>

Bea Arthur becomes a mother to Larry David

It's a casting choice made in TV heaven, as the inimitable Beatrice Arthur reveals she'll be going in next week to play Larry David's mother on a future installment of "Curb Your Enthusiasm." What, you say Larry's mother died in season three of the HBO hit? Well, you're right, but why should that stop them?

"I'm doing a dream sequence. I'm just thrilled to do that show. I can't wait," says the Broadway great, whose TV contributions include "Maude" and "The Golden Girls" -- the latter of which gets its second-season DVD release today. She notes, "There are so few shows I really watch. I love 'The Daily Show' and 'Curb Your Enthusiasm,' and other than that it's news or old movies."

Bea scored a triumph with "Bea Arthur on Broadway: Just Between Friends," the one-woman show she's toured with, off and on, over the last few years. Now, "We've become quite selective about doing the show. I know I don't want to do eight performances a week anymore, so we're lucky to be in a lovely position to pick and choose."

She reports, "We are going to be doing a DVD" of the show at North Hollywood's El Portal Center for the Performing Arts. No dates set as yet.
