I just was able to see it. I logged in the first day it was posted, but, it didn't work, because I got booted. Anyways, I really enjoyed it. It gave me a little taste of what her show is like, since, she is not coming to Oregon or Washington State. I can only pray now...But, I must say, Bea is hilarious and fabulous in that clip. (And every other time!) Lauren

Yes Kevin I can't believe it either - I was thinking about that the other day. I want to know where she gets the energy - the woman is incredible. I get tired just looking at the travel schedule during the months of October and November (when I see her again). I want to know how she does it! After seeing her perform live and meeting here it is hard to believe the reports about her age! She appears much younger. Of course to me she will always be MaudeMaribeth

This feature has what appears to be a significant error. When Ms. Arthur says that she was miscast in the movie version of "Mame," the reporter must have misunderstood her. I believe that the quote should have said that Lucy was miscast.http://www.starnews.com/print/articles/rose02.html

Thanks, sophia505us. I like to read the interviews as much as you do. There don't appear to be any books about Bea, so it's pretty hard to find out everything that we'd like to know about her career. But these interviews sure do help add to our understanding of her. One day, I'd love to read a really good, really long interview that focuses on her entire career -- not just her one-woman show.

Hi all, Received an interesting email and wanted to share it with you. Hopefully he doesn't mind. Note that he mentions Betty White. Can't wait to see the pictures from this event... which I'll post with his permission.Kevin,  I am the guy who informed you about the benefit in Los Angeles at the Wadsworth Theater. My partner and I went, we had the most incredible night at "An Evening With Bea." We were in the first row and surrounded by stars like Betty White, Estelle Getty, Dom Deluise, Nanette Fabre, Darrin McGavin, Angela Lansbury, Cybil Shepard, Helen Ready, Barbara Cook, others we didn't see and several of other character actors and at least three I know were in episodes of the Golden Girls. We went back Stage and met with Bea for about five minutes, she was so nice and funny. She autographed the playbill and Joel took two pictures of her and I, I will e-mail you a the picture as soon as I have the roll developed. What a night I couldn't have picked a better time or place to see her and amongst so many stars too. Eddie Pretty cool, huh! I've seen Bea twice in Chicago, and then yesterday in Indy, and it was slightly different. And as a Bea fan, I hate to say it, she took out some really great parts of the show and filled it with less fitting parts. I was very disappointed that she pulled out "I will see you again" as her last song. In Chicago, she sang that last, and was a very touching song and seemed not to leave a dry eye in the theater...it just seemed to fit. I knew, however, she pulled "These times, they are changing", which I've read where she really enjoys that song. Why pull it then?? Even though I didn't enjoy it as much as I did in Chicago, it is still a show definately worth seeing!

Thanks for sharing that comparison of the shows with us. I've been really interested in how the show has changed. Does she still talk about her foot, like she did in Chicago... or has it healed and she dropped it? I'm very surprised that she dropped "I will see you again"... like you said that wrapped it up very nicely.Take care,kev!lgt2.combeatricearthur.com
