I don't know but I took time aside to watch it. My mom had called me and we talked maybe 5min. and thought I had missed her. But she didn't show up at any time. I wonder what happened, when it came to the end I thought she still would be there. Maybe she just couldn't make it, but it would seem they would have said something about it. They didn't mention her name at all. I am very disappointed.

All I have to say is that they could have at least mentioned that Bea wouldn't be on because of whatever reason. Instead, they pretended like they never planned for Bea to be on the show. Yet, it was still on their web site while the show was airing. Not very responsible of them.

 p.s. I am aware that the club has been coming and going all day. Yahoo is crapping out. This has happened before, just be patient. I have no control over this.

The problems we've been having accessing this board couldn't have come at a worse time, or could they? With Bea's return to Broadway just a few days away, now seems to be a time when we may have lots of stuff to share with each other. Just in case things don't get better soon, may I suggest that y'all remember to take a look at the "Golden Girls" message board at the Lifetime web site? (I've been double-posting most of the links I've found to this board as well as to the Lifetime board.) So, if this one goes kaput for awhile, at least we'll have an alternate meeting place.

http://boards.lifetime.com/WebX?50@251.W1PDauCfiI4^0@.ee74d82

Here's a little good news (I hope -- though after what happened with "The View" I almost hate to mention it). According to a friend, "TV Guide" is showing that Bea is booked to appear on Rosie's show on February 8th.

Well it's good to see the club back up with new posts. I was worried their for a while.

As Ironic wit pointed out, there should start being a flood of reviews and articles about Bea in the coming weeks. Looking forward to them.

Take care all and welcome back :)

Glad that the board is back as well. I am excited since I am going to see Bea for the first of many times this Wednesday, 1/30/02 for the matinee performance. I will be going three other times throughout the engagement to see how it has changed. Sorry to see that she has a cold again, of course, everyone I know right now is sick as well. Crazy weather in the East - snow last week - 60 degrees today!

 Maribeth, you are under strict orders to file a detailed report about Wednesday's show ASAP.

Bea has always preferred to go barefoot. If you go to Kevin's webpage, you no doubt will find some there. One of my all-time favorite pics of Bea is of her, sitting in a chair with her legs flung over the arm of the chair, barefoot of course. It was taken when she was still married to Gene at her house in LA.

Hey guys,

Kevin just wanted me to let you know that he is still having problems with the club. Whenever he goes to the club it lets him enter, but only as a guest, so he is not able to post or any of that stuff. Anyway, he just wanted you all to know that he is not ignoring the club, just still can't get in as a moderator, or member for that matter.

Take care all,

Matt

P.S.- Thanks a million for finding those excellent articles Ironicwit. VERY refreshing interesting stuff!! Much better than the same old interviews with the same info we've known for years.

And I cannot wait for the article in TV Guide! I'll bet Bea looks superb in leather!

Hi Everyone--

Sorry I haven't been around for awhile, but, I've been so busy, and the club has been dis-functioning for awhile, so, I couldn't get in to post. But, I have the flu now, and I'm absent from school, so, I have the time to catch up on posts and whatever.

I read somewhere Bea is supposed to be on The Rosie O'Donnell show either today, or next Tuesday. Can any one confirm this? Please, let me know!

- News Flash!!!

Bea will be a guest on a syndicated radio show, "Broadway's Biggest Hits," which airs on a number of different radio stations throughout the country. According to the web site (the same one where we read a couple of not-very-favorable reviews of her Phoenix engagement recently), the show on which she appears will be aired during the week of February 2-8. She apparently speaks about her career; in addition, excerpts from her new CD are supposed to be included in the broadcast.

http://www.broadwaysbiggesthits.com/
http://www.broadwaysbiggesthits.com/html/stations.html (stations and times)

At least a couple of the affiliate stations broadcast over the Web (there may be more, but I haven't checked 'em all out yet), so I'm hoping that each of us have a chance to hear the show at one time or another. It sounds quite promising.

Kevin, is there any way that you might be able to record the show? Some of us don't have fast Internet connections, and I'm afraid that we might miss out on something really good.

Thanks for finding this link! Have you preordered Beas CD yet? Looks like Amazon has the best price. I'll put my order in next week for sure.

Well, Yahoo is still messed up on my end. I appeared as a guest on my own club for days, so finally today I rejoined... under the same name. Now when I log in it says I'm a member... not a founder. So I'm not sure if I should delete myself or what now. If any of you have had the same problem please let me know. I even show up twice in the members directory. Not cool.. but at least I can post with you guys again :)

Hi Kev. Glad to see you are back with us but sorry that it's causing so many probs and not recognising you as founder. You might want to take a look @  target=new><http://clubs.yahoo.com/clubs/clubmasters> and take a look over the last couple of pages of messages and people mention that their club is back but with no founder, so it seems that there are a lot of people experiencing Yapoo! Just got back from seeing Ms. Arthur's matinee show today - she was fabulous as always. It was nice walking up the street and seeing her picture on the marquee - I remember watching Maude religiously 25 or so years ago and never ever thought I would ever get to see her in person. To me going to her shows proved to be an emotional experience.

The show was still an hour and one half, even though she added a few things since I saw it last. She sang a song about New York and spoke some more about Angela Lansbury. The whole orchestra section was filled and was very receptive to her. You could feel the love pouring back and forth between her and the audience. At the end she did two curtain calls both times to standing ovations. Even though she was not feeling well, said she was getting over a very heavy chest cold, she still looked and sounded great. Being in the first row I did make eye contact with her a couple of times.

I arrived at the theater a little before 12:45 and as I was standing there a limo arrived and out popped Bea! There were a few of us there and she did sign one autograph but was running late and went inside - she walked past me and smiled. She was not in her stage makeup at that point but she still looked good! She did leave by the stage door at the end of the show, but did not sign autographs as she was going back to the hotel to rest before her evening performance. She did stop, however to talk with a fan who was in a wheelchair - which turned out be an emotional experience. Again she walked right by me and as there was a few of us there, we clapped for her and she acknowledged us.

The next time I go (Feb 10) it will be a Sunday matinee with no show that evening or on Monday, so maybe she will sign autographs. The other two times I go are on Saturday nights which might be a little harder to get to her. I am not too concerned about getting another autograph since I have two already; what I really want to do is to tell her how much her characters (especially Maude) influenced me while I was growing up!

Am glad I went as it was a nice mid-week break since spending that hour or so with her is like being back with an old friend - she is such a great lady!

Maribeth
